Do you miss writing class over the summer?

Would you be interested in creating and publishing an original piece of work?

Then, this eight session writing camp is for you! Discover and pursue your passion for writing at our writing camp! Work on writing of your choice, publish it for all to see, and celebrate with other students!

Hosted by the National Writing Project@Rider University, teacher consultants will guide students in small group settings to complete self-driven projects.

Publication could be a book, website or an animated video. The choices are endless. Join us this summer and have fun exploring different genres of writing!
